Seven Generations Child and Family Services

We welcome you to our community-based services...

“SEVEN GENERATIONS” refers to a core philosophical value of American Indians, which states that for the well being of future generations, the responsibility rests on every generation that comes before them. If we act and make decisions that have the best interest of the Seventh Generation, our unborn generation, we will ensure healthy future generations of American Indians.

Seven Generations Child and Family Counseling Services was developed to meet the growing needs of American Indian Children and Families in Los Angeles County.

INNOVATIONS

A pilot program funded by the Los Angeles County Department of Mental Health. Innovation is a culturally competent integrated service plan that is designed to increase the quality of services of the Los Angeles American Indian/Alaskan Native community by building on the strengths of our community and strengthening partnerships that foster the integration of mental health, physical health, and substance abuse services. The Innovation program at Seven Generations intends to meet the unique clinical and functional needs of each community member within the program in collaboration with sub-contractors and community partners.
